Possible B2 answers: Notice how each response gives a clear idea and support.

1. Have you ever seen a celebrity in person? What did you do?

Example: I have not had a memorable celebrity encounter, but I would try to behave normally and respect their personal space. Being recognised everywhere must be exhausting.

2. Which famous person would you like to meet, and what would you do together?

Example: I'd like to meet Tom Hanks and visit a film set with him. I'd ask how he prepares for different roles and what happens when a scene goes wrong.

3. Do famous people have a right to a private life?

Example: Famous people clearly have a right to privacy. Public interest does not justify reporting every detail of their family life or private relationships.

4. Which celebrity do you admire, and why?

Example: I admire Malala Yousafzai because she speaks up for girls' education. Her courage matters more to me than fame, and her example encourages me to express my own views.

5. Are most celebrities good role models for young people?

Example: Some celebrities can be positive role models, but young people should not copy every aspect of a famous person’s lifestyle. Media images are often carefully managed.

6. Would you like to be famous?

Example: I would not enjoy constant attention or the loss of privacy. I would prefer my work to be recognised without becoming personally famous.

7. What is the quickest way to become a celebrity today?

Example: Social media can make someone famous quickly, especially through viral content. However, quick fame is often unstable and does not always reflect real ability.

8. Do famous people have a responsibility to help society?

Example: I think famous people should help when they can, although they're entitled to choose how. Supporting a local charity quietly can be more useful than making a dramatic public announcement.
